Richard Klinghoffer has been with DDK since the very beginning of his career, dedicating over 45 years to the firm. He provides consulting services to individuals and closely-held businesses across a variety of industries, including wholesale, distribution, manufacturing, and professional services like medical practices and law firms.

He's especially passionate about helping businesses reach their next level of success and finds working with multi-generational family-owned companies particularly rewarding. That ongoing connection to people and progress is what keeps him motivated every day.

Outside of the office, Richard values time with his family and believes strongly in maintaining a healthy work-life balance.

“Ultimate success is up to the individual.”
